Frederick, MD, January 25, 2018 – FESCO Energy is pleased to announce the completion of its Series A financing with Safer World Group. FESCO Energy simplifies the acquisition, contracting, deployment and management of energy solutions for government agencies and organizations with mission-critical needs.

“With Safer World’s deep Federal expertise and global capabilities along with their experience in serving mission critical needs of the DOD, we felt they were the best strategic partner for the business”, said John Bradley Dukes, President and Chief Sales Officer of FESCO Energy. He added, “there are Congressional mandates and Executive Orders that make grid independent resilient and secure energy a top priority, and we are prepared to support the government in that initiative. We have designed the business around simplifying energy – from beginning to end.”

“In the simplest terms, FESCO Energy delivers secure and resilient electricity to any kind of customer for less than they are paying for the power received from ‘the Grid’. No upfront fees, no surprises. For the federal government, we have immediate access to contract mechanisms that make the decision to procure secure resilient energy simple and FAR compliant. We are here to help the Department of Defense and the Army with their requirement for 14-day Grid independent energy and water supply mandate. We do this quickly, efficiently, and more cost-effectively than previously available.” commented Dukes. John Bradley Dukes, an industry leader in this space, was most recently with WGL Holdings, and previously with Exelon/Constellation.

“Safer World Group will work with FESCO Energy to provide the technical and management expertise to address the defense and security needs of Federal agencies and organizations in a way that creates a winning scenario for customers”, said Aldric Seguin, VP of Safer World Group, adding, “the benefits of using FESCO Energy is that they can develop, design, operate, maintain, and own assets that deliver secure and resilient electricity to a customer’s task and mission-critical energy demand 1 MegaWatt at a time—at a cost that is the same or less than the grid priced electricity customers already have in their budgets. Mission-critical organizations want and need to simplify their energy solutions—and FESCO Energy does just that.”
